IN MEMORIAM.

Died in this county June the 4th, William M. Shanklin, from a pistol wound received on the 1st. Having known Billy as he was familiarly called from his early childhood, I can join with all who knew him that he was one of the very best young men in the county. His love and devotion to his youthful mother, who in appearance would be mistaken for an elder sister, has often been spoken of and praised. Staying at home closer than any young man in the neighborhood, not that he didn't like the society of young people, but "Ma will be alone and lonesome and I will not leave her."

From the beginning he knew his wound would be fatal and made a disposition of his property. He begged his father and mother to cease crying.
"Shed not another tear for me, you are doing me no good but yourselves an injury."

During the short time he lived he was visited by hundreds of people, giving kind words to all, even at times appearing cheerful, when telling his friends of his hope of immortality beyond this life. Several times he called upon those who were watching by his bedside to sing some of the songs of Zion for him, joining his feeble voice in song until in weakness it would fall to a whisper. He would then look happy, as though the veil had been removed and he had glimpse of a brighter and happier land.
His sufferings were excruciating. He was so tired, so tired, "Let me go up where I can rest. May I not go, ma, and want you go with me?" A few moments later and he had gone without Ma, but I do hope with heavenly guidance to the place where he can rest. Then father, mother and little sister, though Billy was cut down in the bloom of youth, try to be resigned, for God knows best. Let us all prepare to meet him in that brighter and better estate.

"Where no tie is ever broken—Where no heart has ever died—Where no parting word is spoken, And no farewell tear is shed—Where the faint of glory beaming Brightly greet the brave who die—And the stay of hope is gleaming From our Father's throne on high."

Intelligent People.

When an intelligent person makes up his mind to try Smith's Tonic Syrup, made by Dr. John Bell of Louisville, Ky., he will not be persuaded by his druggist to take some other remedy. He will insist on his druggist getting the medicine he wants, even though he may have to wait a week for it. When a family has once used Smith's Tonic Syrup and experienced its quick effect in curing all symptoms of malaria, chills and fever, summer colds, etc., they never allow themselves to be without a bottle of it. When a family has once used Smith's Tonic Syrup, as it is without a doubt in the house as the intelligent father would as-surely be without Smith's Tonic Syrup.
The children like it, and its effect is always satisfactory.

The Press Meeting.

The following extract is taken from Urey Woodson's excellent account of the Press Meeting:
The Kentucky Press Association was first organized at Frankfort in January, 1869. Its second meeting was at Lexington in January, 1870, when it was agreed that June would be a more appropriate season for the annual re-unions of the editors, and another meeting was held at Louisville in June, 1870, and thereafter, as follows: Owensboro in 1871, Bowling Green in 1872, Paris in 1873, Henderson in 1874, Shelbyville in 1875, Danville in 1876, Frankfort in 1877, Hopkinsville in 1878, Bowling Green in 1879, Ashland in 1880. After the Ashland meeting there were no sessions of the association for five years, the entertainments offered the editors by each city in turn having become so famous that large numbers of politicians and others had drifted into the habit of attending uninvited these meetings and deadening themselves upon the hospitality of the people. To put a stop to this injustice the officers of the association concluded to suspend the annual meeting.
The association was reorganized at Louisville in 1885, and met at Hoaderson in 1886, at Louisville in 1887, at Danville in 1888, at Owensboro in 1889 and at Winchester in 1890. Of all these meetings none was ever more satisfactory from a business standpoint or more delightful in a social way than the one that adjourned at Winchester Friday night, after a session of three days.

The social meetings I have said were all that could have been expected.
The business affairs of the association were most advantageously and profitably conducted, but in the latter interest outside the profession of journalism and it needs only to be said that the papers read were of a higher and wider range of interest than has ever been known before.
The subject that most occupied the attention of the association was the law of libel.

Many of the worm medicines and Celebrated Electro-Voltaic Belt and Appliances, and their charming effects upon the nervous debilitated system, and how they will quickly restore you to vigor and manhood. Pamphlet free. If you are thus afflicted, we will send you a Belt and Appliances on a trial.

VOLTAIC BELT CO., Marshall, Mich.

In the excellence and variety of its illustrations and reading matter the July number of "Peterson" is a fair specimen of its general scope and character. The beautiful steel engraving "Celebrating the Day," will especially delight the children, and the illustration, "On a Summer Day," is a charming and seasonable picture.
Ella Higginson's novel, "A Love and a Passion" ends in a highly dramatic manner, and "The Story of Dagmar" is perhaps the best of Miss Albee Bowman's efforts. The array of short stories and miscellaneous articles cannot be excelled by any of the month's periodicals. The fashion and work table departments are filled with seasonable hints, that cannot fail to interest every lady. We strongly recommend those of our readers who are in search of a first-class magazine to try Peterson's for the next six months. Terms Two Dollars a year; One Dollar for six months. A sample copy will be sent for 5 cents. Address,

THE FORUM FOR JULY.

In the Forum for July the series of autobiographical articles by a number of the greatest men of letters and of science is continued, and the contribution this month is by Prof. John Tyndall, who writes of the formative influences of his own life. Another article that is of a somewhat unusual sort is a study of Hamlet, by James E. Murdoch. Mr. Murdoch writes from the point of view both of an actor and of a literary student. The political articles in this number are "Obstacles to Civil Service Reform," by Mr. Walter M. Fries, who from a point of view of friendliness points out that the reformers have hardly broken ground yet, for the great mass of people are in favor of the spoils system; an article on "Ferrymanding," by Mr. Walter C. Hunt, who reviews the most flagrant instances of the unfair making of congressional districts both in Republican and Democratic States; "The Perplexities that Canada Would Bring," by a Canadian writer, Mr. A. B. Carman, who factually makes interesting criticisms of the United States government from his point of view, and he shows that the introduction of a Canadian party into our politics would be likely to cause us hurt that would ill repay the commercial advantages of the union; "A defense of the Veto Power," by Mr. Edward C. Mason, who defends the use of "the kingly prerogative" by the Presidents of the United States.
This is an answer to a recent criticism of the veto power, by Col. Frederick A.
Conkling.

Drunkennes—Liquor Habit—In all the World there is but One Cure, Dr.
Haines' Golden Specific.

It can be taken in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it, effecting a speedy and permanent cure, whether the infirm is a moderate drinker or an alcoholic wreck. Thousands of drunkards have been cured who have taken the Golden Specific in their coffee without their knowledge, and to-day believe they quit drinking of their own free will. No harmful effect results from its administration. Cures guaranteed. Send for circular and full particulars. Address in confidence, GOLDEN SPECIFIC CO., 185 Race Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Flykings—That new comic paper has Slykings—Ah, another burst of mirth.

—Town Topics.

Friend—You say here, "he lay bathed in his blood." Wouldn't it be better to say "weltering in his blood?"

Novelist—Well, that's a little odd; but perhaps it would be weltering in it.

Mr. Lather, the soapman (for he is in what I think, and right here I'm glad I've met you! Let's have it red, in six-foot letters, right across that bluff:

THE LAST OF THE MOKICANS.

One year ago we opened to the people of Hopkinsville and Christian Co. a \$25,000 stock of Boots and Shoes at prices that were much lower than the same qualities were ever sold before. Our purchase of this stock at about 50c on the dollar has enabled us to do this. We find that we have now about 1,000 prs. of this stock left in our store and we have determined to make a clean sweep and in order to do this we have placed this entire lot on counters in the center of our shoe room, and have sent through them a paralytic stroke of horizontal reduction that has actually melted dollars in value into halves and quarters in bullion. This will perhaps be the last opportunity ever offered you to buy fine custom shoes at $\frac{1}{2}$, $\frac{1}{3}$ and even $\frac{1}{4}$ their value.
This sale will continue until the entire lot is sold out.
